ROLE OF THE MONITOR
The role of a Monitor is to monitor the materials/sources that are being generated in relation to an assigned area, and to compile a comprehensive list of those citations/sources. Within CAP, two Monitors will be assigned to each of the four subject areas - corruption, human rights, environment and labour. There is also an expectation for Monitors to create original content, although the specific guidelines and workflow procedures surrounding this are yet to be finalised.

In the initial stages of the project, Monitors will be required to send through the list of citations, with working hyperlinks, to the blog administrators on a weekly basis. In the case of more detailed/complex sources, monitors may be required to draft a brief summary paragraph to accompany the citation as it appears on the blog feed.

All roles with CAP are volunteer positions.

HOW TO APPLY
If interested, please send your CV and a cover letter explaining your interest and relevant experience to alex.catalan.flores@gmail.com.

Applications close Sunday 24th January 2016.

ABOUT CAP
CAP is in its very early stages of development. This, however, does not mean that the Project lacks the necessary momentum for a significant launch. There is vigorous organisational planning taking place, and so now is the perfect time to join the Project so as to secure a position for 2016. A position with CAP means a connection to the ANU College of Law, and the fruits of such a connection are always valuable.
